

One year and a half after the Recovery and Resilience Facility entered into force it is good to take a moment to assess the impact that National Recovery and Resilience Plans are having and can have on inequalities and welfare policies across Europe.

- Did EU member states take advantage of this opportunity to steer the socio-economic development in their country towards more equality and opportunities for all?
- Has the care sector, largely affected by the pandemic, been restructured and refinanced?
- Is the digital investment used to expand access to health and education?
- To what extent are the NRRPs investing in future generations by promoting early childhood education and care?

These are some of the questions that this Recovery Watch conference will be addressing.

The Recovery Watch is a research project led by FEPS, the Friedrich Ebert Stiftung (FES) and the Institut Emile Vandervelde (IEV), in collaboration with several research organisations.

The event consists of two moments:

Thursday, September 29, from 16:00 to 18:30 – A public conference with, among others, Mariana Vieira da Silva, Minister of the Presidency, in charge of the Portuguese NRRP; Thomas Dermine, Belgian State Secretary for Economic Recovery & Strategic Investment; Mario Nava, Director-General of the DG for Structural Reform Support (DG REFORM) at the European Commission, and Fabrizio Barca, Coordinator of Forum Disuguaglianze e Diversità and former Italian Minister for Territorial Cohesion.

You can register here to attend remotely, or in person at FEPS Office.

Friday, September 30, from 9:30 to 13:00 – A closed-door exchange among national experts from the network of organisations providing knowledge and expertise to the Recovery Watch. It includes OFCE Sciences Po, CEPS, the EUI, Wiiw, Forum Disuguaglianze e Diversità, ELIAMEP, the Amsterdam Centre for European Studies, Colabor, IstroAnalytica, TASC, Vision and the Zoe Institute for future-fit economies. It will be the occasion to provide feedback on the ongoing research.
