

FEPS Primer Book Launch Invitation

“Climate progress in the EU and the world” by Stephen Minas

The Book Launch of the FEPS Climate Primer “Climate progress in the EU and the world” by Stephen Minas will take place on Tuesday, 26th November, from 18h30 at Librebook (Chau. de Wavre 128, 1050 Ixelles).

“Climate progress in the EU and the world” by Stephen Minas is the newest addition to the FEPS Primer series. The primer books are written with an educational purpose in mind, to help new audiences enter a technical thematic fields like Climate policy.

Stephen Minas’s new book offers insight into how climate policy has been made at the EU level, the main tools used, the most important actors, and the path forward.

The book is an essential and empowering read amid what is a rising political conflict. This instructive volume provides systematised knowledge, proud records of progressive political achievements, and crucial arguments to strive for a fairer and more sustainable world. The primer explains why climate change matters, the key issues in climate politics, and the international community’s climate goals. It covers EU climate law and policy, and suggests progressive principles for strengthening climate change action.

These issues and more will be discussed at length during the Book Launch. If you are interested in joining please contact Caitlin Reder, Project Officer at caitlin.reder@feps-europe.eu
